

September 2023 Newsletter

Well, dear friends, here we are at September already!

We've had a varied month in August, plenty of outings, despite some decidedly British weather, but we have also been very lucky on some days to be able to sit in the garden or enjoy the sunshine on our boat trips. So lovely to see all of your happy smiling faces in these photographs. I have been continuing to do the door collages which means that most of you will already have yours by now, as I only have a very few left to do!

I cannot do a summary of August, without mentioning Greek day... Gosh, what a lot of fun that was, so many joined in, staff and residents alike with gusto, and the result, was a great success, good food and good fun.

In September, I have got entertainment booked in, and our usual trips including piano club at the end of the month, and at the beginning of the month we will have a talk about Nailsworth history on the 6th and a visit from Horsley school children to do readings for us on Thursday the 7th, so look out for those.

Finally, a small housekeeping note to apologise for any disruption caused by the fitting of our new call Bell system, which is now up and running.

It only remains for me to say how much I'm looking forward to another month with you all, I do hope you will find something of interest on the planner, and don't forget if you have any requests, you can let me know at any time.

Best wishes from myself (Karen) and all the staff at The Steppes 🍷
